

Social Media Accounts our Teachers and TAs Love

1 @goodmorningsfosterltd

Jen Foster is a very passionate primary school teacher who shares the most wonderful ideas for the classroom whilst remaining completely relatable. From use of body language to behaviour management which focuses on forming connections with children rather than correcting behaviour, she has so many simple ideas that are easy to implement ourselves, often with no need for anything other than your voice and your body! I am a particular fan of her attention grabbers, which are adaptable for different Key Stages.

www.goodmorningsfoster.com

3 @the.teachers.health.coach

This account centres around teachers' wellbeing (yes, we matter, too!) and offers tips and advice on everything from organising marking to getting enough sleep. There are even delicious recipes and advice on maintaining a healthy body as well as a healthy mind. We can't expect to be the best teachers if we don't also look after ourselves and this account helps us with finding that balance.

2 @autism_happy_place

No matter what type of school you work in, it's highly likely that you'll be working with autistic children or young people at some point, but how much do you understand about autism and what it's like to be a person on the autistic spectrum? Autism Happy Place uses amazing hand-drawn illustrations to inform and help people with their understanding of the spectrum. The pictures are friendly and simple but so effective and they are created by an autistic artist who wants to help raise awareness, acceptance and understanding for the autistic community.

www.ilipenguinstudios.com/en-ca

More accounts we love!

@busyteachersclub
@early_years_steph
@eyfs_fun_missd
@classroominspirations
@create_make_and_play
@raising_bookworms

4 @miss_lvt_eyfs

If you work in early years, this is a great account to follow, especially if you are sometimes lacking inspiration or creativity. Run by a fashion graduate turned teacher, the displays and hand made resources are colourful and exciting and the ideas for creative and hands-on activities are inspiring. I particularly love the tuff tray ideas!

taplink.cc/miss_lvt_r1

5 @the_mum_teacher

For anyone who is juggling a teaching job as well as having children of their own, this is a really useful account to follow. It can be hard to find the motivation to provide wholesome activities at home when that's what you've been doing all day at school, but, run by a mother of three, this account has loads of ideas for learning and play both at home and in the classroom. I will be stealing some ideas to use at home to create some fun & educational play activities.

linktr.ee/the_mum_teacher

6 @mrs_w_loves_reading

We all know the importance of reading and the impact this has on our children's learning but with so much out there, it can be a minefield deciding which stories to share with your class next. This is a wonderful account to follow if you need a little inspiration. Complete with reviews, book ideas are regularly shared and often categorised such as "books that show empathy" or "books that support children's mental health" which I have found so useful!

